

DAVE BLANKENSHIP

Many of the best jobs are with your current employer. Dave Blankenship, who retired as Corporate Vice President of External Affairs from Rockwell International said he always wanted to know why a candidate did not take the steps necessary to develop talent for his or her current employer. He wanted to see employee progression. He expected employees to take advantage of opportunities for cross training and dedication to corporate goals. Mr. Blankenship also indicated that military promotions and training played a pivotal role in hiring or promotion decisions.